

Audubon Network Assembly

November 3-4, 2018

McKinney Roughs Nature Park

About the Event

Audubon has risen to new heights in both conservation science and community education, and we've done so working together as a stronger network. Building on this tradition, we are organizing our third annual Audubon Texas Assembly. A gathering of chapter leaders, members, and friends to build connections and explore skills for environmental advocacy. This weekend workshop will be November 3-4, 2018, at McKinney Roughs Nature Park just outside Bastrop, Texas. This year our theme is Connecting the Network through Advocacy. Participants will socialize, participate in interactive peer-to-peer workshops and field trips, review success stories, and hear from Executive Director Suzanne Langley about the new direction of Audubon Texas.

About Audubon Texas

The National Audubon Society's mission is to conserve and restore natural ecosystems, focusing on birds, other wildlife, and their habitats for the benefit of humanity and the Earth's biological diversity. Audubon Texas is the state office of the National Audubon Society and coordinates Texas' 20 independent Audubon Chapters.

Audubon Texas works with chapters and partners to protect and manage colonial waterbird populations in every major bay system on the Texas Gulf Coast, have launched a robust urban conservation program, and are developing an innovative prairie and grassland conservation that engages provide landowners and ranchers throughout the state. Additionally, Audubon Texas works to identify and conserve the most important sites for birds statewide, and are working to serve 75,000 visitors annually through conservation education and stewardship action at the Audubon Centers in Cedar Hill, Dallas and San Antonio.
